Room Allocation Policy: The campus offers a variety of room types to accommodate the diverse needs of students. Each year, the management designates specific rooms for different courses based on availability and requirements. The allocation of rooms is conducted through various methods, including a first-come, first-served basis, random lottery, or any other appropriate mechanism determined annually. It is not guaranteed that all PhD students would be able to receive hostel allocation although all attempts would be made to accommodate as many as possible depending on availability of hostel room inventory.

Please note that the room types and associated charges provided are for illustrative purposes only. For detailed information on living expenses, please refer to the Living Expense Policy available on the university's website.

The management retains full discretion over the parameters of this policy and its implementation. All decisions regarding room allocation and related matters are final and binding.

Hostel rack rate and other charges will be subject to an annual increase up to 8%.

Insurance:

The annual insurance fee for PhD students will be charged as per the rate decided by the university at the beginning of each academic year.

Transportation: Some students may be allowed to stay off campus for exceptional reasons. We have University shuttle from some specific locations available. Those who chose to use official SNU transport services would be charged additional amount per semester.

Dining: Mess fee and laundry charges are additional and the rates are fixed at the beginning of each academic year.
